Category Rules:

1. Judges must hear seal release (pop) when opening.
2. Only clear glass jars and bottles to be used.
3. All jars to contain no less than 200 grams or more than 500 grams unless otherwise stated.
4. Jars may be reused however a new lid must be used for show preserving.
5. No cloth or paper covers may be used on jars.
6. Screw top or twist top lids must be used on jars.
7. Screw top, twist top and wire spring tops may be used on bottles.
8. products to be included in jams.
9. All exhibits to be clearly labelled for identification e.g. Orange Marmalade. The label to be no larger than 25mm x 50mm and RASWA's exhibit number to be attached to each jar or bottle, not on top of the lid.
10. Jars should be filled to just below the top of the jar/bottle.
11. Vegetables, tomatoes, pears and tropical fruits when preserved must include a preservative other than sugar e.g. citric acid/lemon juice.
12. A label listing the ingredients must be placed on the bottle. No meat or fish

Definitions and Guidelines:

Jams: Jams should be made from fruit and contain pieces of fruit. They should have a gelled structure either naturally or with added pectin. They should be balanced in sweetness and acidity. Should be according to class, i.e. if strawberry jam it should be straight strawberry, not strawberry and vanilla

Marmalade: Marmalade should have pieces of peel which are edible. Judges will consider if a reasonable effort has been made to use the whole fruit. Marmalade is usually a little transparent. There should be a balance of sweetness and acidity. And should have a gelled structure either naturally or with added pectin.

Chutney: Tangy, sweet pickle of Indian origin based on chopped fruit and/or other vegetables. Served as an accompaniment to curries, hot and cold meats and savouries. The addition of vinegar is important as it preserves the product. Sugar and spice preserve the flavour and make it tasty. It should be a spoonable consistency, not showing signs of too much moisture weeping around product or on plate. Spreadable consistency and correct preparation of fruit or vegetables ie,peeled tomatoes.

Sauces: are much like chutney. Whether a sauce has tiny chunks of fruit or vegetables or contains seeds is a personal choice. They should be pourable from the bottle, but not too thin. Spreadable consistency, with no separation.

Relish: Sharp, tangy and based on fruit and/or other vegetables. Usually contains vinegar and sugar, but generally not in large enough quantities to preserve the ingredients for as long as most pickles. They add zest to hot or cold meats, curries and savoury snacks.

Pickles: Two (2) types.

1. Thick and pulpy, usually vegetables and thickened either by slow cooking to evaporate the liquid and concentrate the flavours or by thickening the liquid with flour.
2. Those that have a clear sweet and/or spicy vinegar poured over various vegetables. Even size, good quality and clarity. Good preparation in peeling and cutting according to type. Onions pickled all the way through. Attractively arranged in their container.

Jellies: Should be made from the strained juice of cooked fruits. Or from the water off the fruit in the cooking process. Not to contain pieces of fruit. They should have a gelled structure be it naturally or with added pectin. Well balanced with sweetness and acidity.
